Mente Corporativa

Os casos do Banco BTG e Credit Suisse tratam do conceito de "mente corporativa" trazido para atribuir à organização, como um todo, o conhecimento detido por alguns de seus integrantes assim como a responsabilidade por atos praticados por eles.

A corporate mind sustenta que é a "mente" ou vontade da entidade que se revela ao realizar-se uma negociação, e não a "mente" ou vontade do próprio agente que, em nome da sociedade, realiza aquela transação, devendo ser atribuído aos integrantes de uma companhia um mesmo nível de conhecimento acerca de seus negócios, prescindindo-se dos elementos concretos do agente, sua posição hierárquica ou função que desempenha organização.

No Brasil, o tema foi abordado pela primeira vez no CRSFN no recurso do Caso Credit Suisse, e posteriormente no caso BTG, verificando-se que a utilização efetiva do Chinese Wall um argumento válido de defesa, não podendo o conceito de "mente corporativa" ser invocado como presunção absoluta de ilícito.
